

Why To Go For Dog Food Comparison?

An in depth dog food comparison can always be best for you to select the best food for your dog. The dog food comparison contains useful information about the dog food. The major benefit of the dog food comparison is to get basic knowledge about the nutritional needs of the dog and the major brands which are providing the complete nutritional requirement in food. As compared to the previous years, nowadays people are more aware about the best food available for their dogs because various brands are offering best food for your dogs. However, the selection of the right brand may be very overwhelming for you. While comparing the dog food, following information can always help you.

First, proteins are considered very important for the muscles, skin, coat and a nail of dogs. The requirement of the specific amount of protein for dogs is based on the age and level of activity of the dog. If your dog is sick, pregnant or lactating then give it high level of protein. The suitable level of protein for a dog is about 25% to 35%. On average; a dog needs about 18% protein in its daily food intake. If your dog has kidney disease, then avoid giving it protein.

Carbohydrates are also considered very important for dogs, and the canned food for dogs contains about 30% to 70% carbohydrate. However, dogs need very little amount of carbohydrates. Dogs also need a small amount of fats in their food. The recommended level of fats for dogs are 10% to 15%. You can also give your dog 20% fats, if your dog is very active. In the case of sled dogs, 50% fats are required. Animal fats and oils such as canola, olive and vegetable are considered best sources of fats for dogs. Therefore, for keeping the healthy immune system of the dog, fats are very essential.

While making the dog food comparisons; you must know the essentials of dog foods. Basically proper diet is very important for the bowels and colon health of the dog. Therefore, you should also add fiber in the food of your dog by giving it pumpkin and Metamucil. Fiber is very effective for aiding constipation, grand problems and diarrhea. Moreover, information about Dog food Comparison can be taken from the consumer research magazines. In addition, there are various brands of dog foods available in the market and you can select the one, based on the ingredients labeled on the package. In this way you can surely provide healthy and nutritious food to your dog. More Links Pet ... Free pets ...

About the Author

Related to the topic of natural dog food, visit dogfoodcoupons1.com.

Source: <http://tacomagarage.com>