

Do Love Calculators Work?

A love calculator calculates the compatibility between you and a partner. Love calculators use either names or birthdays to calculate compatibility. Some sites offer the love calculator free of charge while others charge a membership fee to use the love calculator.

A love calculator will give you a percentage of how compatible two people are. While some love calculators give you only a percentage, others will give you tips on how to improve compatibility.

There are two methods used for love calculators. The first method will ask you to type in both names. The love calculator believes the name of a person can tell a lot about a person. The other method uses birthdays to calculate love compatibility. An old Hebrew tradition that asserts numbers are associated with letters of the alphabet is the basis for this method.

A love calculator can tell you how compatible you are, if you are a perfect match for each other, and how well you communicate with each other. Some view the love calculator as a prank or game. There are others, however, who won't make a move without consulting a love calculator.

This writer visited three different love calculators to determine reliability. Results varied from as low as 10% compatibility to as high as 80% compatibility for this writer and her husband.
